

Öffentlicher Vortrag

(im Rahmen des Institutskolloquiums des Instituts für Philosophie)

Erik Rietveld: Situating and Emoting the Embodied Mind

12. Dezember 2013, 18 Uhr c.t.

Hörsaal, Institut für Philosophie, Habelschwerdter Allee 30, 14195 Berlin

Workshop

(Organisatoren: Jan Slaby und David Löwenstein)

Anmeldung erforderlich

13. Dezember 2013

Raum KL 32/202, Cluster Languages of Emotion

Habelschwerdter Allee 45, 14195 Berlin

9:15 - 10:00

Rietveld on the Embodied Mind - Continuing the Discussion

Jan Slaby (Freie Universität Berlin)

David Löwenstein (Freie Universität Berlin)

10:00 - 11:00

Situated Normativity and Normative Guidance.

Rietveld meets Ryle

David Löwenstein (Freie Universität Berlin)

11:30 - 12:30

Phenomenological effects of Deep Brain Stimulation with Obsessive-Compulsive Disorder patients: an enactive affordance-based approach

Sanneke de Haan (Universiteit van Amsterdam)

14:00 - 15:00

Scaffoldings of the Affective Mind

Giovanna Colombetti (University of Exeter)

15:30 - 16:30

Ways to Think about Extended Affect

Joel Krueger (University of Exeter)

17:00 - 18:00

Aesthetic Affordances, Affect, and Architecture

Joerg Fingerhut (Humboldt Universität zu Berlin & Universität Stuttgart)

Mog Stapleton (Universität Stuttgart)

Dr. Erik Rietveld is a senior researcher at the University of Amsterdam's Medical Center and Department of Philosophy. He is also a partner at RAAAF (Rietveld Architecture-Art-Affordances), which was curator of the Dutch Pavilion at the Venice Architecture Biennale 2010. He was Visiting Scholar at UC Berkeley and Fellow in Philosophy at Harvard University. In 2013, Netherlands Organisation for Scientific Research (NWO) awarded him with a VIDI-grant for his research project 'The Landscape of Affordances'. He has published papers in Mind, Phenomenology and the Cognitive Sciences, Inquiry, and Behavioral and Brain Sciences (BBS).

Anmeldung bitte bis zum 10. Dezember unter: david.loewenstein@fu-berlin.de.

Weitere Informationen unter: www.loe.fu-berlin.de

Vortrag und Workshop werden vom Cluster Languages of Emotion und dem Institut für Philosophie der Freien Universität Berlin in Kooperation mit der Kolleg-Forscherguppe Bildakt und Verkörperung der Humboldt Universität zu Berlin organisiert.