Six week internship at Language Science Press from 1 March 2021 (flexible starting date)

Language Science Press is a scholar-owned, not-for-profit press founded in 2014. We publish high-quality, peer-reviewed books in linguistics. So far, we have published 135 books in 22 book series.

Internships are advertised for six weeks full-time or three months half-time. In both cases, the place of work is Berlin. Non-EU citizens need to have a work permit.

Tasks can include, but are not limited to: typesetting of linguistic examples, tables, trees, diagrams, maps; book cover creation; facilitation of community proofreading; metadata creation; catalogue housekeeping, proofreading of texts, testing of user interfaces and creation of manuals and guidelines. Applicants should specify which tasks they would be interested in and why.

We are looking for applicants who have:

- a strong commitment towards openness in science
- a good knowledge of linguistics as a science, including acquaintance with different subfields and different languages
- good knowledge of computers, preferably involving the command line
- good command of English
- some experience with the structure of scientific papers and books
- some familiarity with HTML/XML or  $\LaTeX$ .

Optional, but by no means compulsory are:

- advanced skills in  $\LaTeX$
- knowledge of versioning systems such as Git
- background in software development and/or graphic design
- background in the scientific publication process, e.g. as student or teaching assistant or from working in a library

The gross monthly salary for an internship is €1600 (based on 40h/week, part-time is possible). Please direct your application to sebastian.nordhoff@langsci-press.org by 30 December 2020 at 12:00 noon. We welcome applications in both English and German. The application should include a cover letter and a CV (without photos). You can add more attachments to illustrate specific competences. Please indicate your preferred starting date if it is not 1 March.
